Wenn man zu Fuß die Grenze von Spanien nach Gibraltar überquert, heißt einen als erstes das strahlende Gesicht von Miss World 2009, derzeitige Bürgermeisterin der Halbinsel, willkommen.

Die erste Woche auf dem Felsen habe ich dazu genutzt, mich umzusehen, umzuhören und täglich den aktuellen Gibraltar Chronicle zu studieren. Die Idee war, meine täglichen Eindrücke tagebuchartig auf dem Titelblatt der Tageszeitung zu hinterlassen. Dabei habe ich mir erlaubt, die Werbeanzeigen mit meinen Bildern und Befindlichkeiten zu übermalen und zu überkleben, in der Hoffnung eine fruchtbare Korrespondenz mit den Schlagzeilen und Cover-Fotos des Chronicle zu erzielen.

Ich habe keine Sehenswürdigkeit ausgelassen und abends tolle Bekanntschaften mit den unterschiedlichsten Menschen aus Gibraltar gemacht.

Sehr gefreut hat mich auch, dass mein tendenziell doch eher simpler Brexit-Bildwitz aufgrund der heiklen tagespolitischen Situation offenbar schnell einen Abnehmer gefunden hat – kurz nachdem ich mein Werk im Schaukasten des alten Kinos platziert hatte, war es schon verschwunden.
